Reading the Fine Print

Below is listed some important kashrus designations found on products and their meaning.

- MEAT - Product contains meat, requiring the usual wait time between meat/dairy.
- MADE w/ MEAT UTENSILS - This designation is usually found on prepared foods of the local take-out. Product should not be eaten together with dairy. However, it would not require a waiting period to eat dairy.
- PARVE - Product may be eaten together with meat or dairy.
- DAIRY EQUIPMENT (DE) - Usually found on packaged products. Although the item does not contain any dairy ingredients, it was produced on equipment that was used at another time to produce dairy products. Item should not be eaten or drunk together with meat. It may be consumed after meat. (For those who consume cholov yisroel products, consult your Rav as to whether you must be stringent regarding DE designated products also.)

Pas Yisroel - The Staple of Life

The Gemara (Avodah Zara 35B) tells us that chazal prohibited the bread of a non-jew. The reason for this enactment was out of concern that we engage in eating, drinking and socializing, which may lead to intermarriage and the serving of idolatry. The original enactment forbid all breads, whether from a commercial baker (pas palter) or an individual (pas akum). Later on, part of that enactment was rescinded. According to ashkinazim, the bread of the commercial baker became permitted. However, during עשרת ימי תשובה the custom as mentioned in Shulchan Aruch (Chap.473) is to be stringent and to only use commercially baked goods where a Jew participated in the baking process.

Below are some practical points:

- This refers only to items baked from the five grains: wheat, oats, spelt, barley and rye (not rice or corn).
- Pasta products are not considered bread items.
- Breakfast Cereals, Pancakes - In order to be considered in the bread family, besides being from the five grains mentioned above, it must have the "form" of bread (צורת הפת). There is a difference of opinion concerning how to categorize these items.
- Cakes, wraps, pies, pretzels and crackers are considered bread family foods.
- Doughnuts - This is a cooked dough which retains its shape. Two opinions are cited in Shulchan Aruch (168:13) as to whether it is still considered a bread product.
- Bread Croutons, Bread Crumbs - Are considered bread
- Granola Bars - are not considered a bread item according to most opinions.
